

Progress and Surprises

March has become April so quick it almost slipped me by. But we're here! California's early spring weather seems to finally be calming down, though I'm not holding out hope that'll last. At least Mister Harker seems to be enjoying himself (when he's not getting confused hearing his name a lot - I'm rereading the book from which he derives his name.)

Coming Soon To A Convention
Near You

The big news this month is that I've officially been able to confirm that I'll be at two conventions in 2024 - Fan Expo Denver around July 4th, and Dragon Con in Atlanta the last weekend of August. I'll be there mostly in my capacity as a podcaster, but if you see me, say hi!

I'm still sorting out my travel arrangements, so if anyone has any tips for either of these cons, please let me know.

Tim is Fine

Okay, that might be a lie.

You don't know, though. But I do! Because Book 3 of Beachouse Studios, tentatively titled "Threesome," is very close to having its first draft complete. Some things came up which prevented me from finishing over the weekend as was my plan, but I'm hoping to finish this week. I'll probably post to Twitter (I refuse to call it X) when I do, so if you aren't following me for all my enlightened and correct Star Wars takes over there, you should be.

As for "Second Shoot," editing and preparation for pre-release continues. I just saw some of the progress on the cover today, and it looks fantastic. I can't wait to share it when it's ready, as well as the book itself! The five-book arc of the series only gets crazier from here.

A Surprise, To Be Sure

Mild spoilers ahead if you've not listened to the most recent episode of For Light And Dice!

Gold Squadron Gays continues to cover Star Wars: Visions Season 1 and we're about to move on to The Bad Batch's third and final season - but let's skip right over that because I'd much rather talk about For Light and Dice, which added a fun new addition to its guest voice cast.

Yes, that is my Gold Squadron Gays cohost Bradley Brower as the voice of the Weequay pirate Kassav, bouncing off the fantastic Stef from Dark Side Divas and Holodeck Divas as Louna Dee and our GM Chris as Marchion Ro. I had suggested a few times that Bradley voice Kassav as a joke, but Chris apparently was taking that very seriously. So did Bradley, who turned in an almost unrecognizable performance as Kassav. Clearly, if his day job doesn't work out, he should become a voice actor.

(No one tell him I said nice things about him.)

May the Fourth be Coming Up

Next month is, of course, a religious observance for me - Star Wars day, as always, falls on May 4th, but it's a yearlong thing for me. Every day is Star Wars day when you're insufferable! I'll see y'all next month!
