

Why is it already July?

Pride month is over, but I am gay for the entire year, so we'll be continuing that steady drip of queer content year-round to match. There's been a lot happening in June and a lot more happening in July, so let's hit the roundup!

Jonathan Harker-Murray Esq is very tired, however. (Not tired enough to keep his claws to himself, though.)

"Second Shoot" Release Date!

The first order of business is the most important - Second Shoot, the second book in the Beachouse Studios saga, will release August 3rd, 2024. Check out the cover below, once again drawn by Jordan (@NonsenseCommon) with typography by Miblard.

SECOND SHOOT

BEACHOUSE
STUDIOS

BOOK 2

C. W. ROGERS

Second Shoot picks up right where Beachouse Studios' cliffhanger ending left Dan and Ry. In the aftermath of the party, the two must reckon with the consequences of their actions even as forces inside and outside the studio begin to draw closer to the truth.

This installment gradually begins to expand the Beachouse Studios world. We are introducing a new antagonist (maybe?) in Angela Harrow, diving deeper into characters we already know (including elevating two of them to POV characters,) and laying a lot of hints as to future books in the series. I'm excited for it to get into folks' hands and see where these characters go next!

Also, Tim is fine.

Yes, The Party Is Still Split

On For Light and Dice, you can hear the continuing adventures of the split party, divided between Goz, Wynne, and Gonk (the adults in the room) and Lysander, Korael, Zero, and the probe droids (everyone else.) The problem with playing a TTRPG with a bunch of Star Wars lore nerds is that no, you can't actually just hyperspace jump from Lysatra to the other side of the Galaxy. Unless you have a Path Engine, which the 1N-2000 does not have!

I recognize that I just typed a bunch of gibberish, but I promise the show makes sense even if you've never seen a Star Wars!

(Gold Squadron Gays is still covering the Bad Batch. We recorded the Asajj Ventress episode over the weekend. It's lit.)

We have how much of 2024 left?

Just as a reminder, if you are in the Denver area, I will be at Fan Expo this upcoming weekend (July 4-7th) wandering about looking lost. If you see me without coffee, please hand me one. I probably need it.

And that's where we're at for July of 2024! I am excited for the release of Second Shoot at the start of next month. You can follow my socials (@cwrogers6 on everything worth having and some things that aren't) for information on when pre-orders will be available and when ARCs will go out.

The next email you receive from me will hopefully be announcing that a new book has been released! Can't wait!
